

Jay Kim

A former sports journalist, Jay Kim is a labour and employment lawyer who represents organizations in labour relations matters and employment matters. He also has an expanding practice in Sports Law and provides legal advice to Provincial and National Sports Organizations.

Law Career

Since Jay began his career with Wyllie Spears as a summer and articling student, he has focused his work on assisting and representing organizations in the field of labour and employment law.

Jay has extensive experience as a sports journalist, having covered a wide range of sporting events in the past, from speed skating to football. His articles have been published in multiple international sports law publications.

He has a growing Sports Law practice, providing legal advice to Provincial Sports Organizations (PSO) and National Sports Organizations (NSO) and has guided NSOs through Olympic and World Championship selection disputes. He also provides legal assistance to PSOs and NSOs in relation to governance and by-law issues.

Recent Sports Law Publications

Progress in women's football since Abby Wambach et al v. Canadian Soccer Association and FIFA
October 2018, World Sports Advocate

Including sex transitioned athletes: Worley v. Ontario Cycling Association et al
November 2017, World Sports Advocate

Jay Kim

Telephone: 613-238-8712

Fax: 613-237-4001

Email:

jkim@wylliespears.com

Bar Admissions

Ontario, 2018

Education

B.Sc. University of Ottawa
(2013)

J.D. Queen's University
(2017)

Professional Associations and Memberships

Sports Lawyers Association
Canadian Association of Labour Lawyers